Dear Anet

Thank you for your email and the good news.

Do not worry, I know the duties of Review Editor as I am an Associate Editor in the Computational Genomics section.

Regards,

Maurice LING

Dear Dr. Ling,

My name is Anet and I work as Editor Outreach Specialist for Frontiers in Education- I am writing to you because we received your application to join the editorial board and would be delighted to welcome you as Review Editor of our STEM Education section.

To explain a little more about the role, Review Editors are required to peer review manuscripts within your area of expertise - typically 5-7 paper per year. Our transparent peer review process - with an average duration of 90 days - relies on an efficient, custom-built interactive forum where authors, editors and reviewers can discuss manuscripts collaboratively. Review Editors are also encouraged to suggest or co-edit a Research Topic and shape the direction of the journal by developing an article collection in line with your research interests.

In recognition of your contribution, your name will be published on all the articles you endorse/co-edit. This role is also fully linked to our networking platform Loop, which maximises your visibility as a member of the editorial board.

I would like to highlight that this is a voluntary role and the above framework is totally flexible. You set the pace of your collaboration by accepting or declining to handle manuscripts whilst our journal team is available to facilitate any of your editorial needs.

I have now sent you a separate official invitation to join our board which must be acknowledged by clicking the enclosed link. Following this, your acceptance will be formalised and our journal team will proceed to acquaint you with the role.

Of course, should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to get in touch.

Looking forward to hearing from you.

All the best,

Anet
